THE EXTINCT AND DORMANT PEERAGES

NORTHERN COUNTIES OF ENGLAND.

Hardly so good as the reviewers make out —

in De la Pole, he assumes & asserts the desecration claimed by the Earl, without giving any reference at all!

PREFACE.

If any person undertakes to write an account of a manor, town, or district, or even if he studies the history of the baronial and other conflicts, sooner or later he will be almost compelled to obtain some information about the pedigrees of the lords and barons who at one time possessed so large a part of the land of the country.

How, then, will this information best be found? Probably the searcher will first examine the extinct and dormant peerages which have been printed. Dugdale's, or rather Dodsworth's, Baronage comes first, and although it is a wonderful book, many alterations can be made in it. It is followed by several others, including Banks' Peerage, Nicolas and Courthope's, Burke's and Collins' Extinct Peerages, and, last, of G.E.C.'s Complete Peerage. In most of these books the actual inheritors of the various titles are only considered, and probably for want of room no account is taken of earlier generations, younger children, and younger branches.

The county histories will most likely next attract attention, as they often contain more detailed pedigrees than are found in the Peerages. In the North of England we have Hunter's South Yorkshire and Hallamshire, Surtees' Durham, Raine's North Durham, Hodgson's Northumberland, Thoresby's Ducatus, Whitaker's Craven, Richmondshire, and Loidis and Elmete, with other minor histories. Most of these, however, have been printed many years; they are expensive, and owing to their large size can only be seen in the public libraries, few persons at the present day having room on their shelves to keep them.

Since their appearance a vast amount of fresh information has been obtained. In the last few years many calendars have been printed by the Record Office; also indexes and copies of wills, inquisitions, fines, etc., by the Surtees and other county societies. In that great work, the Dictionary of National Biography, the lives of many of the old barons find a place, but it is almost necessary to understand them properly for the reader to have before him a sketch pedigree to explain the various relationships.

The Editor of this volume has considered that it would be useful to inquirers to have a concise "Northern Extinct and Dormant Peerage," with information up-to-date. He has carefully examined the above authorities, and although they often differ considerably, he hopes that his attempt will be found fairly correct. In all genealogical works there must be some errors, so he cannot pretend that they will be entirely avoided in the present instance. The wills at York and Somerset House are more accessible than formerly, and those mentioned have been copied, many probably for the first time.

The counties included are Yorkshire, Durham, Northumberland, Cumberland, Westmorland, and Lancashire.

The Editor has to thank Mr. J. C. Hodgson, of Alnwick, for looking at some of the proofs of the Northumberland families, and giving him much information.

The arms barry of six probably belonged to the Aton family, but the Vesci arms, the cross patonce, were generally used (see Nicolas' Roll). The fourth shield is the one about which there was great litigation with the Boynton family (see Ancestor ix, 216).

BALIOL OR BALLIOL, OF BARNARD CASTLE.<sup>3</sup>

ARMS:—Gules, an orle argent.

- I. GUY, or GUIDO DE BALIOL, of Bailleul, in France; came to England temp. William I or II, and had grant of the baronies of Bywell, co. Northumb., and Stokesley, co. York. He granted the churches of Stokesley, Gainford, and Stainton to St.

<sup>1</sup> Sir Gilbert and his son William, with Isabel his wife, are mentioned in a fine, 1327, as having the manors of Walton, Aton, Hutton Bushell, Wintringham, and Brompton (Yorks. Record Series, xlii, 1). This and his will are against the idea that he and Sir William (V) were brothers, as in many pedigrees. In the new edition of G.E.C.'s Peerage this is altered.

<sup>2</sup> Anastasia seems to have had the Brompton, Catherine the Malton, and Elizabeth the Wintringham and Hutton Bushell estates on division.

<sup>3</sup> The early history of the Baliols is uncertain. Guy de Baliol came from Picardy. He was probably a son of Guy (Wymund or Wido), and had an elder brother Hugh, who had Bernard, Josceline, Eustace, and Ralph. There is no proof that he came with the Conqueror; but it is certain that he had great gifts from William Rufus, including Bywell, Gainford, Barnard Castle, and Hitchin. He gave his daughter Hawise, who married William Bertram, Stainton, but was succeeded by his nephew Bernard.

<sup>1</sup> Canon Raine in a note (Test. Ebor., ii, 64) says the relationship between the houses of Ormesby and Hornby has never been correctly ascertained. He suggests this account to be probable. Query, if Anne who married James Strangways was granddaughter of Robert.

<sup>2</sup> Not in Foss's Judges. He is said to have died circ. 1422, and to have had an effigy at Hornby.

<sup>3</sup> There is a tomb to him and his wife at Hornby. Canon Raine printed in Test. Ebor. iii, 228n, a will dated 1426, but the exact date of his death is uncertain. <sup>1</sup> He appears by his will to have left Sawley Abbey to Edward Russell, the younger, and Arthur Fleetwood equally.

<sup>2</sup> There is great discrepancy in the history of this family. The above is principally taken from the article by W. Hylton Dyer Longstaffe, in Herald and Genealogist, iv, 348, which alters the pedigree in Surtees' Hist. Durham, ii, 26, and in which G.E.C. seems to concur.

The descendants of Alexander, 2nd Lord, called themselves Barons of Hilton, which title was never allowed. The last of the family (of which there is a long pedigree in Surtees), John Hilton, Esq., died 25 Sept., 1746, and was buried in the Hilton Chapel. He left three sisters, Anne, married Sir Richard Musgrave, of Hayton, Bart. ; Elizabeth, married Thomas Younghusband, Esq. ; and Catherine, married John Brisco, Esq. Anne Musgrave was great-grandmother of Mr. Hylton Jolliffe, who claimed the title, but it was not given him. His nephew, Sir William George Hylton Jolliffe, Bart., was created 19 July, 1866, Baron Hylton, but did not inherit the estates, which had been sold previously by the Musgraves.

- IV. SIR ROBERT DE HILTON, Knt., of Hilton, 1st Lord; summoned 23 June, 23 Edward I (1295), to 26 Aug., 24 Edward I (1296); mar. Joan . . . . They had issue—

- V. SIR ALEXANDER, 2d Lord; summoned 27 Jan., 6 Edward III (1332), to 22 Jan., 9 Edward III (1336); died 1360; mar. 1st, Alice . . . . They probably had—
Robert de Hilton, who was never summoned, but from whom descended a long line, who called themselves Barons of Hilton.
Mar. 2ly, Matilda dau. and coheiress of Richard de Emildon (widow of Richard Acton, of Newcastle); died 8 Sept., 1369 (G.E.C.); Inq. p. m. 43 Edward III (1369-70).

MAULEY, LORDS MAULEY.

ARMS: Or, a bend sable.<sup>3</sup>

- I. PETER DE MAULEY, the 1st, a Poitevin; a favourite of King John; one of his counsellors 1211; is doubtfully alleged to have been employed to murder Prince Arthur; gave 7,000 marks to possess the whole inheritance of his wife; built <sup>1</sup> An infirm man, having no children, married his sister Avice to John Grey, on condition that the said Robert and Maude, his mother, enfeofing them of their lands, the issue should bear the name of Marmion (Dugdale's Baronage). This account rather differs from the fine above, Robert not being mentioned at all.

<sup>2</sup> It is not known if he was buried at Tanfield, but the monument there is most probably to him and his wife, although it has been generally attributed to his brother Robert. The inquisition states his niece, Elizabeth Grey, or Marmion, was his heir (see McCall's Richmondshire Churches, 197).

<sup>3</sup> The original Mauley arms appear to have been Vair, a maunch gules (Charles' and Glover's Rolls, Hen. III), but in the roll of Edward II the arms as given above are named being the arms assigned to Fossard, which were ever after continued by the Mauleys.

Mulgrave Castle ; went on a crusade with the Earl of Albemarle to the Holy Land in 1241, where he is said to have died<sup>1</sup> (see Dict. Nat. Biog.) ; mar. Ser., Inquisitions, i, 191) ; mar. 1st, Joan, eldest dau. of Peter de Brus (II) ; probably died s.p.; mar. 2ly, . . . . They had issue—

Peter (III).

Stephen, Archdeacon of Cleveland 1289 and 1306.

- III. PETER DE MAULEY,<sup>2</sup> the 3d, of Mulgrave, Doncaster, etc.; 30 years old at his father's death.; mar. Nichola dau. of Gilbert de Gant, of Hunmandby, son of Gilbert, Earl of Lincoln. They had issue—

Peter (IV).

- IV. PETER DE MAULEY,<sup>4</sup> the 4th, of Mulgrave, Doncaster, etc., 1st Lord Mauley ; summoned 23 June, 23 Edw. I (1295), to 12 Dec., 3 Edw. II (1309), as Peter de Malolacu ; in the wars in Wales and Scotland ; signed the letter to the Pope, 1301 ; died 1310 ; Inq. p. m. 3 Edw. <sup>1</sup> Dugdale says in error that he died 1221.

<sup>2</sup> He may have had a daughter Matilda, married to Thomas, 1st Lord Multon, whose daughter Margaret ran away with Lord Daere.

<sup>3</sup> For an account of his effigy, see Archæologia, xxxi, 238. In Nicholas' Roll, Edw. II, Sir Edmund has 3 wyvers, Sir Robert 3 eagles, and Sir John 3 dolphins argent, on the sable bend.

<sup>4</sup> There is an Inquisition as to his proof of age in Record Series, iv, 5, where it states that he was born and baptized at Mulgrave, in March, 1278-9 ; he must have been young, only 18, when he was summoned to Parliament. The early Mauley history is not very clear, but all the authorities agree as to the dates of the summons and of his death in 1310.

Margaret dau. of Robert, 3d Lord de Clifford; Inq. p. m. 6 Rich. II (1382-3). They had issue—

Peter (VI).

II (1382-3); will 8 Mar., 1381-2; proved York; to be bur. in the church of the Friars Minors of Doncaster (Test. Ebor., i, 116); mar. 1st, Elizabeth dau. and coheiress of Nicholas, Lord Meinell, widow of John, 2d Lord Darcy of Knaith; died 9 July, 1368; Inq. p. m. 41 Edw. III (1367-8). They had issue—

Peter (VII).

Mar. 2ly, Constance<sup>1</sup> dau. of Sir Thomas Sutton, of Sutton (see Lords Sutton); ? remar. Sir John Godard; M.P. Yorkshire 1386; Inq. p. m. 2 Hen. IV (1400-1).

- VII. PETER DE MAULEY, the 7th; died v.p.; mar. Margery dau. of Sir Thomas Sutton, of Sutton, sister of his father's second wife (remar. Sir William, Lord Aldburgh of Harewood); will proved York, 19 Oct., 1391; to be bur. in the church of Friars Preachers, York (Test. Ebor., i, 149). They had issue—

Peter (VIII).

Constance, mar. 1st, William Fairfax, who died s.p.; mar. 2ly, Sir John Bigod. Her will 1 Jan., 1449-50 (Test. Ebor., ii, 66).

Elizabeth, mar. George Salvin, Esq., of North Duffield.<sup>2</sup>

- VIII. PETER DE MAULEY, the 8th, 4th Lord Mauley; summoned 18 Aug., 23 Rich. II (1399), to 12 Aug., 3 Hen. 5 (1415); died s.p.; will 5 Sept., 3 Hen. V (1415); to be bur. in the church of St. John, of Bridlington (Test. Ebor., i, 379); Inq. p. m. 3 Hen. V, 1415-6, when the estates were divided between his sisters, Constance, who obtained Mulgrave, and Elizabeth, who had Doncaster and Egton; mar. Maud dau. of Ralph Nevile, 1st Earl of Westmorland<sup>3</sup>; will 1 Oct., proved York, 8 Oct., 1438; to be bur. in the church of the Friars Preachers of Scarborough (Test. Ebor., ii, 66); Inq. p. m. 17 Hen. VI (1438-9).

<sup>3</sup> Canon Raine says she is said to have remarried Sir Francis Godard, and to have had a daughter Anne, wife of Sir Brian Stapleton, but her will makes no mention of such an alliance (Test. Ebor., ii, 66). According to Nicholas' Scrope and Grosvenor Roll, ii, 389, it was Constance, widow of Peter de Mauley VI, who remarried Sir John Godard.

<sup>2</sup> The pedigree is very uncertain at this time. It is suggested, in the Guisborough Cartulary, ii, 80*n*, that there were two generations, Stephen IV and Robert V, between this Robert and Stephen VI; but there seems no direct information.

Nicholas de Meynell, however, had by her an illegitimate son, Nicholas, who got the estates (see Second Line).

<sup>1</sup> The early history of the Stapletons is not very clear. Mr. H. E. Chetwynd, in 1897, printed The Stapletons of Yorkshire. Since then Mr W. Paley Baillon has examined more closely the documents at the Record Office, and has come to rather a different conclusion as to the earliest members. The chief difference appears to be in Roger being the husband of Juliana de Wath. Mr. Stapylton's version is:—

Geoffrey.

Sir Nicholas.

Nicholas II mar. Juliana de Wath.

Nicholas, mar. Margery Basset.

The above is, therefore, according to Mr. Baillon.

<sup>2</sup> She is called by several authorities, including Mr. Chetwynd-Stapylton and the Dictionary of National Biography, daughter of John of Brittany, Earl of Richmond ; but Thomas Stapleton, the antiquary, and Mr. Baildon deny that marriage, which also does not appear in the pedigree of the Earls of Richmond.

<sup>3</sup> From them descended Sir Thomas Metham, who fell at Marston Moor, 1644. He had two coheirresses, Catherine, who married Edward Smith, and left no issue ; and Barbara, who married Thomas Dolman, of Badsworth. Their descendant, John Thomas Dolman, Esq., petitioned for the Stapleton barony but no result was arrived at, so it is still in abeyance.

(J.W.C.)

WARDE, LORD WARDE OF GIVENDALE AND GUISELEY.

- I. SIR SIMON WARDE,<sup>1</sup> of Givendale and Guiseley; born circ. 1245, died 1306; mar. Clarice . . . . . They had issue—

Sir Simon (II).

Sir John, probably born 1280 to 1290; succeeded his brother Simon, 1334; dead in 1347. His son, Sir Simon, succeeded, and the family continued in the direct male line till Sir Christopher Warde, the last inheritor, who died 31 Dec., 1521, leaving three heiresses, Margaret, Anne, and Joan, among whose descendants the property became divided.

- II. SIR SIMON WARDE, Lord Warde of Givendale and Guiseley; summoned 30 Dec., 18 Edw. II (1324), to 24 July, 8 Edw. III (1334); High Sheriff of Yorkshire, 1315–21; a Commander at the battle of Boroughbridge for the King, and an important man in Yorkshire, holding many offices; died early in 1334, s.p., and was succeeded in his estates as above by his brother John. He may have married Isabel dau. of Serlo de Westwick, widow of Sir Robert de Plumpton; also Alice . . . . . (Baildon).

<sup>1</sup>The pedigree of Warde has been so thoroughly gone into by W. Paley Baildon in Baildon and the Baidons, that it is hardly necessary to print the earlier and later generations of this family, which only possessed one lord. See also Slater's History of Guiseley, and Walbran's Fountains, Surtees Soc., vol. 42.
